Bobby Gadjev is a Berlin-based artist and photographer whose work explores the themes of love, identity, and the city. His series "Berlin In Love" captures the city's vibrant and diverse LGBTQ+ community, celebrating the beauty and resilience of love in all its forms.

Gadjev's photographs are intimate and often joyful, capturing the everyday moments of love and connection between people. They depict couples kissing, holding hands, and simply being together, in the streets, parks, and bars of Berlin. Through his work, Gadjev challenges traditional notions of love and family, and celebrates the diversity of the LGBTQ+ community.

Gadjev was born in Bulgaria in 1989, and moved to Berlin in 2011. He began his career as a photographer in 2015, and has since exhibited his work in galleries and museums around the world. His work has been featured in publications such as The New York Times, The Guardian, and Vogue.

In 2019, Gadjev published a book of his photographs titled "Berlin In Love." The book features over 100 photographs from the series, and includes essays by Gadjev and other writers about love, identity, and the city. The book was a critical and commercial success, and helped to raise Gadjev's profile as an artist.

Gadjev's work is a powerful and moving reminder of the beauty and resilience of love. His photographs celebrate the diversity of the LGBTQ+ community, and challenge traditional notions of love and family. They are a valuable contribution to the ongoing conversation about love, identity, and the city.

Berlin In Love: A Conversation with Bobby Gadjev

In a recent conversation, Gadjev spoke about his work and his inspiration for the "Berlin In Love" series.

"I moved to Berlin in 2011, and I was immediately struck by the city's vibrant and diverse LGBTQ+ community," Gadjev said. "I saw so many different ways of loving and being loved, and I was inspired to capture that in my work."

Gadjev's photographs are often intimate and joyful, capturing the everyday moments of love and connection between people. He said that he is drawn to the beauty and resilience of love, and that he wants his photographs to celebrate the diversity of the LGBTQ+ community.

"I want my photographs to challenge traditional notions of love and family," Gadjev said. "I want to show that love is not limited to any one particular form, and that it can exist between people of all ages, races, and genders."

Gadjev's work has been praised for its beauty, honesty, and sensitivity. He is a talented artist who is using his work to make a positive impact on the world. His photographs are a reminder that love is a powerful force for good, and that it can overcome any obstacle.

Berlin In Love: The Exhibition

The "Berlin In Love" exhibition is a retrospective of Gadjev's work from the past decade. The exhibition features over 100 photographs from the series, as well as a selection of Gadjev's other work. The exhibition is on view at the Museum of Photography in Berlin until September 25, 2023.

The "Berlin In Love" exhibition is a must-see for anyone who is interested in photography, love, or the city of Berlin. Gadjev's photographs are beautiful, moving, and inspiring. They are a celebration of the diversity of the LGBTQ+ community, and a reminder that love is a powerful force for good.
