Early Life and Cancer Diagnosis

Sarah was born in a small town in England. She was a happy and healthy child, and she loved to spend time with her family and friends. However, in 2014, Sarah's life was turned upside down when she was diagnosed with a rare form of cancer.

Sarah was devastated by her diagnosis, but she was determined to fight. She underwent months of grueling treatment, including chemotherapy and radiation. Throughout her treatment, Sarah remained positive and upbeat, and she never gave up hope.

The Birth of Raf And The Robots

During her treatment, Sarah met Raf, a young boy who was also battling cancer. Raf was a huge fan of robots, and Sarah would often tell him stories about robots that would come to visit him in the hospital.

One day, Sarah had an idea. She decided to start a charity called Raf And The Robots, which would provide robots to children with cancer. Sarah's goal was to bring joy and laughter to children who were going through a difficult time, and she hoped that the robots would help them feel less alone.

The Impact of Raf And The Robots

Raf And The Robots has been a huge success. Since its inception, the charity has provided robots to over 10,000 children with cancer. The robots have brought joy and laughter to children all over the world, and they have helped them feel less alone.

In addition to providing robots, Raf And The Robots also offers a variety of other programs and services for children with cancer and their families. These programs include financial assistance, emotional support, and educational opportunities.
