The novel begins with the of Evelyn, a young woman who has recently moved to the small town of Bletchley. Evelyn is a talented swimmer, but she is also shy and introverted. She finds it difficult to fit in with the other girls in town, who are more interested in gossip and boys than in swimming.

One night, Evelyn is walking home from the pool when she sees a group of women swimming in the moonlight. Intrigued, she decides to join them. The women are all different ages and backgrounds, but they share a common love of swimming. They call themselves the Ladies Midnight Swimming Club, and they meet every night to swim and talk about their lives.

Evelyn is immediately drawn to the club. She finds friendship and acceptance among the women, who encourage her to embrace her love of swimming. Through her involvement with the club, Evelyn begins to come out of her shell and to find her own voice.

As the war rages on, the women of the club face new challenges. They must deal with the loss of loved ones, the fear of the unknown, and the uncertainty of the future. But through it all, they find strength and support in each other. The Ladies Midnight Swimming Club becomes a place where they can escape the worries of the world and simply be themselves.

The Ladies Midnight Swimming Club is a story about the power of friendship, the resilience of the human spirit, and the triumph of hope over adversity. It is a heartwarming and inspiring novel that will stay with you long after you finish reading it.
