Set against the backdrop of the Holocaust and its aftermath, the story weaves together the lives of two women, each bearing the scars of a tragic past and longing for connection.

A Tale of Two Women United by Loss

The novel introduces us to Eva Traube, a young Jewish woman living in Prague during the Nazi occupation. As darkness descends upon Europe, Eva witnesses the horrors of the Holocaust firsthand, losing her family and everything she once held dear. Haunted by the unimaginable trauma she has endured, she vows to rebuild her life and find a way to come to terms with her loss.

Decades later, in the vibrant city of San Francisco, lives Anna Rosen, a successful and independent woman who has kept her painful past a secret. When she inherits a mysterious painting from her grandmother, she embarks on a quest to uncover its origins. As she delves deeper into the painting's history, she stumbles upon a hidden connection to Eva's story, awakening long-buried memories and emotions.

Love's Enduring Presence

Despite the harrowing events that separate them, Eva and Anna are bound together by an unbreakable thread of love. Through flashbacks and poignant storytelling, Harmel masterfully reveals the profound love that Eva shared with her family and the enduring legacy it leaves behind. Anna's own journey of self-discovery leads her to embrace the possibility of love and forge connections with others.

The Power of Forgiveness and Redemption

When We Meet Again is not merely a story about loss and suffering, but also about forgiveness and the transformative power of redemption. Eva's experiences in the Holocaust have left her understandably bitter and filled with anger, but through the love and support of those around her, she gradually finds a path toward forgiveness and healing. Anna, too, grapples with the weight of her family's past and the guilt she feels for not knowing their story. Her journey leads her to confront her own complicity and to seek redemption through acts of kindness and understanding.
